"The Pulliam family is one of the oldest in Virginia, the first Pullum (Pulliam) as far as I can find out, having come in 1636, however, so many of the records have been destroyed it has been impossible for me so far, to get any well connected record. You ask me if I think the spelling, Pullam, Pullum, Pulhan, could be a wrong spelling. I do. I think the name was pronounced that way, and the clerks just wrote it the way it sounded. The earliest record of Pullam (Oulliam) I have found was 1704 in the Quit Rent Rolls of New Kent Co., Parishes of St. Peter and St. Paul - "William Pullam (Pulliam) 575 acres 1704."

* My own Pulliam line begins (going backward) with Frances Pulliam, who married twice - 1st John Hisle 1796- and Absalom Lillard 1810, and died before 1816. Her father was Thomas Pulliam who died in Culpeper Co., Va. 1806, and her mother's maiden name was Boswell. Thomas Pulliam lived in Spottsylvania Co., Va. in 1764 when he was appointed guardian of his younger brother Benjamin after the death of his brother James. Both Thomas and James were executors of the estate of their father, Thomas Pulliam, in 1758 in Spottsylvania Co., when he was living and "of age" and listed as a "planter" in 1735. He married Winifred Holladay, daughter of Capt. John Holladay, and was one of the executors of his will. This is as far back as I have any connected Pulliam record. The fact that the names of James and Benjamin run through the family suggest that Rhomas Pulliam may have been the son of James Pulliam of New Kent Co.

I had some correspondence with a Mrs. Williamson several years ago, who claims decent from Edward Pullam who came to Virginia in 1636, her line as given in the Compendium of American Genealogy, Vol. VI is as follows:

Edward (Pullum) Pulliam

James b. about 1640 Henrico Co. Va.

William b. about 1665 of New Kent Co. Va.

Benjamin b. about 1706 Mecklenburg Co. Va.

Benjamin m. 1st Mary Bruce son John Bruce (1755-1809- wrote name Pulliam)

You will notice that I found the two spellings given as the same in 1704

I also found a William Pullam who was "of age" as early as 1656 and patented land in New Kent Co. all of which fits into what my father told me that his mother told him - that one of her Pulliam ancestors was born on the Atlantic Ocean. If Edward came to Virginia in 1636 and William was "of age" in 1656, he might have been born on the Atlantic Ocean.

John Clark's will, York Co. Va. 1657 mentions his sister Mary Pullum. William Pullam received 1000 acres in New Kent Co. for transporting 20 persons, including his sister Elizabeth Pullum. You see that Pullam and Pullum were the same. The thing to take into consideration is that all of the old records were in long hand, also the pens were not good, possibly quill, a's and o's couldn't be told apart, also could be taken for u. I have often wondered if Edmund and Edward were the same man.

* I have seen somewhere that Sidney Lanier was descended from a Pulliam. Two Pulliams went to Kentucky and settled in Breckenridge Co., the other around Frankfort.

* I have traced a descendant of George Pulliam, thru his daughter Nancy Pulliam Woodfin, whose son married an Anderson, and Sidney Lanier's mother was Mary Anderson, and her father was Jeremiah Anderson.

Do you have any records that show anything more than this?
